Pat Parran, Peter Steinley Ph.D. No one wanted war after the great world war. However, when Germany invaded Poland on 1 September 1939, other European countries felt they had to act. This result was six long years of world war II. Learn more about how Germany's aggression and how other countries have reacted. Adolf Hitler wanted more land to extend Germany in accordance with the Nazi policy of Le-banesarem — a German word, a living place, and Lebansarem, who had been serving Hitler as a justification for expanding his empire. Hitler has used strict sanctions that were an excuse to gain in favour of Germany in the Post-First World War in the Varsai agreement against Germany where German-speaking people lived. Germany used this reasoning to make two whole countries unsuccessfully fought. Austria : March 13, 1938, Germany occupied Austria (cited by The Ansalus)-an accountability specifically allowed in the Varsaia agreement. Czechoslovakia: September 28-29, 1938, French and Britain declared Germany a major part of Czechoslovakia. Then Hitler took the rest of Czechoslovakia until March 1939. Many have wondered that Germany was allowed to capture both Austria and Czechoslovakia without war. The simple reason is that Britain and France did not want to re-create the first world war bloodshed. Britain and France believed, as wrongly he made out, they could avoid another world war by Hitler Appejani with some concessions (such as Austria and Czechoslovakia). At that time, Britain and France did not understand that hitler's hunger for land was too high, more important than any country could have been. After gaining both Austria and Czechoslovakia, Hitler was sure he had still moved east, gaining Poland at that time without fighting Britain or France. (If Poland is attacked, Hitler signed an agreement with soviet union to end the possibility of soviet union fighting — the Agreement on Nazi Anti-Soviet Aggression). So Germany did not seem officially aggregator (which was), Hitler needed excuse stowed the attack on Poland. It was Heinrich Himmler who came up with the idea: Thus this project was operation Himler related to the code name. On the night of 31 August 1939, the Nazis took an unknown prisoner from their concentration camps and took him in a Polish-made dress to the polish edited border of Poland and Germany, Glyuitz, and then shot him. A staged scene with the prisoners who died in polish edifying should have appeared as a Polish attack against a German radio station. Hitler used this step-by-step attack as an excuse to attack Poland. on 1 September 1939 at 4:45 am (followed by the morning in the attack, German soldiers entered Poland. Suddenly, the germans attack edited a lot of the battle of the power. The German Air Force immediately hit that the majority of Polish air force was also destroyed on the ground. Germans bombed bridges and roads to stop Poland's working class. Groups of soldiers walking were firing machines from the air. But the Germans did not just aim for the soldiers. They also shot the civilians. Groups of fleeing civilians often found their own under attack. Germany could be more confused and chaos, slow Poland could have been able to keep its forces active. Using 62 divisions, six of which were armoured and ten matched, the Germans attacked Poland on the ground. Poland was not imbeased, but they could not compete with germany's motor force. With only 40 partitions, none of which were armoured, and almost destroyed with their full air power, the scabs were in a severe loss. Polish Cavalry had no match for German tanks. On 1 September 1939, at the beginning of the German attack, Britain and France sent adolf Hitler an uli-metam: Germany would either take out its forces from Poland or Britain and France would go into war against him. On 3 Rd German forces declared war with Poland, Britain and France, deeply against Germany. World War II began Beginning.
